Corporate Espionage

Michael S. Morgan, Special Agent, FBI Houston Division

Our nation's secrets are in jeopardy, the same secrets that make your company profitable. The FBI estimates billions of US dollars are lost to foreign competitors every year. These foreign competitors deliberately target economic intelligence in advanced technologies and flourishing U.S. industries. Furthermore, FBI investigations indicate economic espionage and trade secret theft against US businesses are on the rise. Over the past two years, foreign actors have targeted and collected against US companies, universities, think tanks and government research facilities for oil and natural gas information concerning upstream, midstream, and downstream processes. The FBI continues to lead efforts to mitigate, neutralize, and disrupt the theft of intellectual property and trade secrets that could be used by foreign governments or foreign companies to gain an unfair economic advantage.

Join us to learn more about the threats your company may be experiencing and best practices on how to better protect your company.

ALL ABOUT HOUSTON

Houston, Texas, at approximately 596 square miles, is the fourth largest city in America.

Houston is the largest city in Texas with a population approaching three million.

Houston is the county seat of Harris County, the nation's third largest county with more than 3.4 million citizens.

The city of Houston actually spreads over three counties: Harris, Fort Bend and Montgomery.

"Houston" was the first word Astronaut Neil Armstrong spoke when he landed on the moon.

It's home to the first major freeway in Texas.

America's first public television station is located here.

Texas-sized is an expression that can be used in two ways: to describe something that is approximately the size of the U.S. state of Texas, or to describe something (usually but not always originating from Texas) that is large compared to other objects of its type.

Texas is the second largest U.S. state in both area and population, with an area of 268,820 square miles (696,200 km²) and a growing population of 23.9 million. It was the largest U.S. state, until Alaska became a state in 1959. The physical size of the state and the bigger-than-life attitude of some of its inhabitants has led to the saying that...

"Everything is bigger in Texas".

FUN FACTS

The name of all the continents end with the same letter that they start with

The word "lethologica" describes the state of not being able to remember the word you want

In English, "four" is the only digit that has the same number of letters as its value

Q is the only letter in the alphabet that does not appear in the name of any of the United States

TYPEWRITER, is the longest word that can be made using the letters only one row of the keyboard

The sentence "the quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog" uses every letter in the English language

The only 15-letter word that can be spelled without repeating a letter is uncopyrightable.

Stewardesses is the longest word typed with only the left hand

The first words spoken by Thomas Edison over the phonograph were: "Mary had a little lamb."

Before Jets, Jet lag was called Boat lag

There are no words in the English language that rhyme with silver and orange
